List of Maps

It would be ideal if all the maps of ethnic populations could be made comparable, using the same cartographic design and scaling. However, the great range of ethnic group sizes, from many millions to fewer than twenty thousand, makes this impractical. Because the largest groups represented significant proportions of county populations, they have been mapped in terms of their percentages in total county populations. Maps of smaller groups show absolute numbers within counties by means of graduated symbols—a more appropriate technique where percentage values are very low. However, except for the special map of Jews, the percentage categories or symbol size scaling for all 1980 maps has been consistent within each of three series of maps, making possible easy comparisons between most of the maps. The absolute population of each ethnic group in every county can be found in appendix 2.
