

Amy Marga

Karl Barth's Dialogue with Catholicism in Göttingen and Münster

Its Significance for His Doctrine of God

Mohr Siebeck

Table of Contents

Preface	V
Introduction	1
Chapter I: Barth and Roman Catholicism: A Brief History	15
Renewal and Trauma	15
Cracking Open Thomas Aquinas	28
The Ecumenical Significance of Barth's Tenure in Münster	33
The Münster Dogmatic Cycle	35
The Reformation Critique of the Catholic Church	37
Uncharted Territory: Barth's Encounter with Erich Przywara	44
The Eruption of 'Natural Theology' and the Fate of the Analogia Entis	47
A New Generation of Catholics Read Karl Barth	51
Barth's Later Theology and New Ecumenical Concerns	54
Chapter II: The Concrete and Objective Presence of God	59
The Turn to the Objectivity of God	60
The Catholic Critique of Protestant Transcendentalism	69
God's Concrete and Objective Presence in Incarnation and Spirit Christology and the Erik Peterson Debate	77 84
Chapter III: The Incarnation and Its Presuppositions	91
The Incarnation Presupposes Creation	92
Reconciliation at the Center	94
Creation: The Periphery to the Center	98
A Note on Election	103
The Legitimate Concern of Natural Theology	104

Barth's Use of the Term, "Analogia Entis" in the Münster Dogmatics	109
The Proper Target of Von Balthasar's Critique	112
The Incarnation Presupposes an "Original Relationship"	115
The Incarnation Presupposes a Peaceful Coexistence of Sin and Grace	117
Chapter IV: Reconciliation is an Act of Creation	123
Barth, Thomas, and Przywara	123
The Objectivity of God in Church and Creation	124
Barth's Response to Erich Przywara	136
Revelation is an act of Reconciliation	136
Reconciling the Mind	140
The Simul and the New Creation	144
The Unbridgeable Divide between Barth and Catholicism	147
Chapter V: The Objectivity of God in God's Triune Being	153
The Logic of Creaturely Veils and Adequate Knowledge of God	155
The Primary and Secondary Objectivity of the Triune God	160
Barth's Rejection of the Catholic Doctrine of God	167
Election and the Future of the Analogia Entis in Barth's Theology	169
Appendix: English Translations to Longer Citations	177
Bibliography	181
Index of Names	195
Index of Subjects	197