

Historical Linguistics and the Comparative Study of African Languages

Gerrit J. Dimmendaal

University of Cologne

John Benjamins Publishing Company

Amsterdam / Philadelphia

Table of contents

Preface	IX
Figures	XIII
Maps	XV
Tables	XVII
Part I. The comparative method	1
CHAPTER 1
Explaining similarities	3
1.1 The introduction of historical-comparative linguistics in an African context	4
1.2 Sound correspondences and reconstructions	9
1.3 Additional methodological considerations	14
CHAPTER 2
Explaining sound change	23
2.1 Some common types of segmental changes	23
2.2 Tonal changes	35
2.3 Sound change and its link with syllable structure and word structure	39
2.4 Structural consequences of sound change	43
2.5 What does it mean to explain sound changes?	50
2.6 Explaining exceptions	54
CHAPTER 3
Classification and subclassification techniques	59
3.1 Shared innovations	60
3.2 Lexicostatistics	71
3.3 Mass comparison	74
3.4 The comparative study of African language families: A brief summary	81
CHAPTER 4
Morphosyntactic changes	93
4.1 Morphological innovations and subclassification	93
4.2 More on analogy	101
4.3 Other types of morphological reinterpretations	109
4.4 Syntactic reconstruction	111

CHAPTER 5

Semantic change 115

- 5.1 Stating the problem 115
- 5.2 Metaphors and metonymy 118
- 5.3 Grammaticalisation theories 122
- 5.4 Semantic change and cultural experience 132
- 5.5 The role played by cognition 135

CHAPTER 6

Internal reconstruction 141

- 6.1 The historical relevance of synchronic morphophonemic alternations 141
- 6.2 Why today's morphology is not necessarily yesterday's syntax 149

CHAPTER 7

Language-internal variation 153

- 7.1 Establishing dialect zones 153
- 7.2 Dialectometrical studies 164
- 7.3 The transition problem 167
- 7.4 Resolving the Neogrammarian controversy 174

Part II. The linguistic manifestation of contact 177

CHAPTER 8

Borrowing 179

- 8.1 Lexical and grammatical borrowing 179
- 8.2 Structural borrowing 188
- 8.3 Codeswitching 199
- 8.4 Linguistic areas on the African continent 203

CHAPTER 9

Pidginisation and creolisation 213

- 9.1 Pidginised and creolised languages 213
- 9.2 Bickerton's bio-program 218
- 9.3 The role of substrate languages 223
- 9.4 Pidginisation and creolisation rather than pidgins and creoles 230

CHAPTER 10

Syncretic languages 237

- 10.1 On so-called mixed languages 238
- 10.2 The emblematic role of syncretic languages 245
- 10.3 Special-purpose languages 248

CHAPTER 11

Language contraction and language shift 253

- 11.1 Language contraction 253
- 11.2 Language shift and social identity 261

CHAPTER 12

Language contact phenomena and genetic classification 265

- 12.1 History repeats itself 266
- 12.2 On so-called non-genetic and multi-genetic developments 267
- 12.3 Cladistic versus rhizotic models 276

Part III. Studying language change in a wider context 281

CHAPTER 13

Language typology and reconstruction 283

- 13.1 Phonological typology as a heuristic and controlling device 283
- 13.2 Morphological typology and reconstruction 290
- 13.3 Syntactic typology and reconstruction 298

CHAPTER 14

Remote relationships and genetic diversity on the African continent 307

- 14.1 On so-called long range comparisons 308
- 14.2 Afroasiatic 309
- 14.3 Nilo-Saharan 312
- 14.4 Niger-Congo 318
- 14.5 Additional language families and linguistic isolates 324
- 14.6 A note on stable and unstable features in languages 329

CHAPTER 15

Language and history 333

- 15.1 The words-and-things method 334
- 15.2 The spreading of language families and population movement 336
- 15.3 Interpreting borrowing in a cultural-historical perspective 344

CHAPTER 16

Some ecological properties of language development 347

- 16.1 Biological evolution and language evolution 348
- 16.2 Punctuation and equilibrium periods 352
- 16.3 A potential linguistic parallel of the species-area effect 355
- 16.4 Self-organising principles 365
- 16.5 Some final remarks 370

References	373
Appendix	407
Language and language family index	409
Subject index	419

Figures

Figure 1	The subclassification of Eastern Nilotic according to Vossen (1982)	63
Figure 2	The subclassification of Niger-Congo according to Williamson (1989a)	87
Figure 3	The subclassification of Benue-Congo according to Williamson (1989b)	87
Figure 4	The subclassification of Bantoid according to Watters and Leroy (1989)	88
Figure 5	The subclassification of Kordofanian according to Schadeberg (1981a)	90
Figure 6	The subclassification of Semitic according to Hetzron (1976)	97
Figure 7	The historical development of *R in Kalenjin	161
Figure 8	Dialectometrical representation of Yemba lects	166
Figure 9	NeighbourNet representation of Eastern Sudanic and Shabo (Schnoebelen 2009)	279
Figure 10	The subclassification of Surmic according to Dimmendaal (1998b)	363

Maps

Map 1	The spreading and classification of Bantu	66
Map 2	Swahili isoglosses	156
Map 3	The Rhenish Fan (after Frings 1957)	157
Map 4	The Nilotic-Bantu contact zone	191
Map 5	Convergence areas (Heine 1976b)	208
Map 6	Afroasiatic	309
Map 7	Nilo-Saharan	319
Map 8	Niger-Congo	321
Map 9	Northern Khoisan, Central Khoisan, and Southern Khoisan	325
Map 10	African language families and linguistic isolates	327
Map 11	The spreading of Bantu	337
Map 12	Bantoid	339
Map 13	The Greenberg-Guthrie controversy	340
Map 14	The Wadi Howar diaspora	342
Map 15	The historical spreading of Swahili	345
Map 16	Genetic diversity in the Nuba Mountains	356
Map 17	The distribution of Surmic languages	364

Tables

Table 1	Data on languages from Koelle's Group IV	6
Table 2	Consonant inventories in Oti-Volta Oriental (Gur)	9
Table 3	Cognate sets in Oti-Volta Oriental (Gur)	10
Table 4	Correspondence sets in Oti-Volta-Oriental (Gur)	11
Table 5	Correspondence sets for palatal consonants in Oti-Volta Oriental (Gur)	12
Table 6	Cognate sets in Bantu	15
Table 7	Correspondence sets between Bantu languages for bilabials	16
Table 8	Bilabial stops after nasals in Swahili	16
Table 9	Correspondence sets between Swahili and Nyamwezi for vowels	17
Table 10	Cognates between Lugbara and Northern Madi	37
Table 11	Cognate sets in Comoe (Kwa)	49
Table 12	The subclassification of Nilo-Saharan	80
Table 13	Irregular forms for 'cow' in Eastern Sudanic	97
Table 14	The noun-class system of Proto-Bantu (Meeussen 1967)	99
Table 15	Numeral classifiers in Kana	136
Table 16	Correspondence sets between Northern and Southern Swahili dialects	154
Table 17	Cognate sets in West German	158
Table 18	The lexical root for 'all' in Swahili dialects	165
Table 19	Cognate sets in Gbe	176
Table 20	Lexical borrowings in Baale	184
Table 21	Pidginisation index according to Bickerton (1984)	219
Table 22	Semantic transfer in Ndyuka	226
Table 23	Syncretic languages and their socio-historical background (McConvell and Meakins 2005)	246
Table 24	The consonants of Ebrié	285
Table 25	The consonants of Proto-Volta-Congo (Stewart 1989)	286
Table 26	The consonants of Proto-Edoid (Elugbe 1973)	288
Table 27	Proto-Edoid reconstructions	288
Table 28	Vowel systems in Benue-Congo	289
Table 29	Proto-Benue-Congo noun classes I (De Wolf 1971)	291
Table 30	Proto-Benue-Congo noun classes II (De Wolf 1971)	291

Table 31	Noun-class affixation in Niger-Congo	292
Table 32	Verbal extensions in Niger-Congo	297
Table 33	Pronominal reference in Afroasiatic	310
Table 34	Gender in Afroasiatic	311
Table 35	Case in Afroasiatic	311
Table 36	The consonants of Proto-Nilo-Saharan (Ehret 2001)	316
Table 37	Sound correspondences for Nilo-Saharan (Ehret 2001: 10)	317
Table 38	Noun classes in Niger-Congo (Schadeberg 1989)	320
Table 39	Potou-Akanic-Bantu correspondences	322
Table 40	African language families and linguistic isolates	328
Table 41	Proto-Indo-European consonants and their reflexes in French	348