

Herausgegeben im Auftrag der Rechtswissenschaftlichen Fakultät
der Universität Zürich von A. Auer, G. Biaggini, O. Diggelmann, T. Gächter,
A. Griffel, T. Jaag, C. Kaufmann, H. Keller, R. Kiener, A. Kley,
M. Simonek, F. Uhlmann

David Suter

The Shanghai Cooperation Organisation

A Chinese Practice of International Law

Content Summary

Acknowledgments	V
Content Summary	IX
Table of Contents	XIII
Table of Tables	XXIII
Abbreviations and Acronyms	XXV
Introduction	1
I. Aim and Importance of this Study	1
II. Method	3
III. Technical Aspects	5
PART 1: Historical and Political Context	11
Introduction to the First Part	12
Chapter 1: Historical Context	13
I. Introducing the ‘Shanghai Process’	13
II. Emergence and Development of the ‘Shanghai Five’	15
III. Sketching the Bilateral Integration	40
IV. Concepts Apparent in the ‘Shanghai Process’	66
Chapter 2: Political Context	97
I. Geopolitical Interests	97
II. Security Interests	108
III. Economic Interests	112
IV. Energy Interests	119
V. Contextualising the ‘Shanghai Five’ and the SCO	122
VI. China’s Influence on the Legal Framework of the SCO	151
VII. Conclusions	158
PART 2: Institutional Analysis of the SCO	161
Introduction to Part 2	162
Chapter 3: Structure and Mechanisms of the SCO	163
I. Introduction	163
II. Organs	163
III. Decision Making	222

IV. Finances of the SCO	259
V. Membership in the SCO	266
VI. Relationship to Other International Organisations	286
Chapter 4: Characterisation of the SCO under International Law	299
I. Domestic Legal Personality	299
II. Privileges and Immunities	302
III. International Legal Personality of the SCO	319
IV. Functions and Powers of the SCO and Its Permanent Organs	331
V. Relationship of the SCO with its Member States	339
VI. The SCO under U.N. Charter Chapter VIII	341
VII. Dispute Settlement	347
VIII. In Lieu of a Summary: Typology of the SCO	353
PART 3: Cooperation under the SCO Framework	299
Introduction to Part 3	380
Chapter 5: Cooperation in Fighting the ‘Three Forces’	381
I. Documents Outline	382
II. Development Strains	385
III. General Context	546
IV. Conclusions	563
Chapter 6: Scope of Official Information	567
I. SCO Documents	567
II. Information on Actual SCO Cooperation	578
III. Information Required by U.N. Bodies	581
IV. Situation for Legal Scholars in China	584
V. Conclusions	595
Chapter 7: Dispute Settlement	597
I. General International Law	597
II. SCO Framework	610
III. Chinese Precepts	620
IV. Final Observations	627

Chapter 8: Human Rights in the SCO	631
I. Human Rights Commitments of the SCO Member States.....	632
II. SCO and Human Rights in General.....	637
III. Human Rights in SCO-Cooperation.....	640
IV. Position of China	653
V. Conclusions	660
Chapter 9: SCO Documents under the Law of Treaties.....	663
I. Preliminary Inquiry into “Legal Effects”	663
II. Legal Effects of SCO Documents	672
III. A Framework of Documents.....	712
IV. SCO Documents on the Same Subject-matter.....	717
V. Principles of the ‘Shanghai Process’	725
VI. Chinese Precepts	764
VII. General Conclusions	778
Epilogue	781
I. Function of Law in the SCO	781
II. Meaning of China’s Participation.....	783
III. General Developments	785
Annex.....	787
I. Chinese-English Equivalents	787
II. Unrevealed Documents	791
III. Sources	803