

Fundamental Rights in Europe

Challenges and Transformations in Comparative Perspective

FEDERICO FABBRINI

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

Table of Cases	xi
List of Abbreviations	xx
Introduction	1
1. Of Floors, Ceilings, and Human Rights: The European Fundamental Rights Architecture in Comparative Perspective	4
1. Introduction	4
2. The European multilevel architecture for the protection of fundamental rights	6
3. “Sovereigntism” vs. “Pluralism”: the existing literature and its limits	14
4. The European multilevel system in comparative perspective	25
5. The dynamics of the European multilevel architecture recast	35
6. Challenges and transformations: a model	45
7. The structure of the book	48
2. The Right to Due Process for Suspected Terrorists	51
1. Introduction	51
2. Context: the protection of due process rights in the EU member states after 9/11	53
3. Challenge: the impact of EU counter-terrorism law on due process rights	57
4. Comparative assessment: due process and national security in the US federal system	67
5. Recent developments: the case law of the European Court of Justice	78
6. Future prospects: beyond the Lisbon Treaty	85
7. Conclusion	93
3. The Right to Vote for Non-Citizens	96
1. Introduction	96
2. Context: electoral rights for non-citizens in the EU member states	99
3. Challenge: the impact of supranational law on states’ electoral laws	104
4. Comparative assessment: voting rights for non-citizens in the US federal system	114
5. Recent developments: the case law of the European Court of Justice	121
6. Future prospects: beyond the Lisbon Treaty	129
7. Conclusion	138

4. The Right to Strike	141
1. Introduction	141
2. Context: the protection of the right to strike at the state level in Europe	145
3. Challenge: the impact of the case law of the European Court of Justice on the protection of the right to strike in Europe	153
4. Comparative assessment: the right to strike in the US federal system	163
5. Recent developments: the case law of the European Court of Human Rights	172
6. Future prospects: beyond the Lisbon Treaty	181
7. Conclusion	192
5. The Right to Abortion	195
1. Introduction	195
2. Context: states' abortion laws	199
3. Challenge: the impact of supranational law on states' abortion laws	209
4. Comparative assessment: the right to abortion in the US federal system	218
5. Recent developments: the case law of the European Court of Human Rights	227
6. Future prospects: beyond the Lisbon Treaty	237
7. Conclusion	246
6. The Protection of Fundamental Rights in Europe: Towards a "Neo-Federal" Theory	248
1. Introduction	248
2. Four case studies	249
3. Three common patterns	255
4. Two stories	259
5. One model	262
6. From practice to theory	265
7. Conclusion: a "neo-federal" vision	269
Conclusion	272
Bibliography	274
Index	313