

how to cure a ghost

poems by FARIHA RÓISÍN

illustrations by
MONICA RAMOS

contents

11 | after the loss

15 | self-portraiture

19 | after the loss, take 2

22 | you feel me right, you feel me?

25 | reminder for self

29 | plastic bags inside another plastic bag to carry said plastic bags

30 | ammu, after the smoke

33 | mansplain nation

37 | two of swords

40 | bad men keep bad men keep bad men cool

45 | je ne suis pas folle

47 | utopia

49 | how to cure a ghost

51 | on being alone

52 | loss becomes her

57 | responsibility is not a burden

61 | mothers

62 | state of exhaustion

65 | on being an immigrant

69 | time means everything

71 | how to cure a ghost ii

74 | bodily solcism

75 | my island home

76 | what have you got to lose? me: everything

77 | rumi

79 | cointelpro

82 | call me felicity

84 | the many descriptions of being brown

87 | the night of the cactus

89 | you come to understand a place only after you leave it

93 | under the golden hour

95 | haruomi hosono

98 | sporting a new look

100 | unlearning

101 | all the things we're actually thinking when men think we're staring

103 | i really really care, don't you?

105 | it's all love

107 | we go on, sisters, we go on

110 | this one's with teeth

111 | 1971

114 | the women who have seen

118 | sadness is a vacuum

123 | my heart is a novella

124 | what 9/11 did to us

130 | to drone or not to drone

131 | to the aunties

132 | allahu akbar

136 | who's right?

140 | i'm two halves of the moon, i'm still evolving

141 | neu land

144 | golden lube

146 | before partition

149 | anthurium

151 | on watching the house burn down

152 | there's nothing original about judas

155 | belonging

158 | this one's for me

160 | acknowledgments