

Destabilizing the Margins

An Intersectional Approach to Early Christian Memory

MARIANNE BJELLAND KARTZOW

❧PICKWICK Publications • Eugene, Oregon

Contents

Acknowledgments · vii

Notes on Abbreviations, Texts, and Translations · xi

Introduction: Re-Forgetting the Margins? · 1

PART ONE: Embodying Cultural Complexity

- 1 Gendered Slave Bodies and “Metaphorical Violence”: Thinking with Luke 12:45–46 · 31
- 2 Borderline Identity: The Contested Body of the Ethiopian Eunuch (Acts 8:26–40) · 46
- 3 Mapping Sameness and Difference: Virginitly in Joseph and Aseneth · 59
- 4 Rediscovering Slaves: Motherhood and Circumcision in the Pastoral Epistles · 70

PART TWO: Sound of Silence? Dynamics of Speech and Talk

- 5 Challenging Female Communities: Orality and Resurrection in the Gospels · 81
- 6 Limited Access: Stereotyping the Voice in the Pastoral Epistles · 102
- 7 Negotiating Power Relations: Talkative Widows out of Place (Luke 18:2–5 and 1 Tim 5:13–14) · 110
- 8 Talking Pair: Paul and the Fortune-telling Slave Girl (Acts 16:16–18) · 122

PART THREE: Overlapping Relationships

- 9 Conceptualizing Power Structures: Gal 3:28 and the Colossian Household Codes · 135

PART FOUR: Beyond Intersectionality: Trice Vulnerable but Named

- 10 Negotiating Hierarchy: The Slave/Woman Blandina · 157
- 11 The Memory of Hagar: A Model for Overcoming Marginality · 165
- Conclusion · 174

Bibliography · 181

Subject Index · 197

Scripture Index · 203