

Daniël Timmerman

Heinrich Bullinger on Prophecy and the Prophetic Office (1523 – 1538)

Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht

Contents

Preface	9
1. Introduction	11
1.1 Bullinger as church minister	11
1.2 Outline of this study	17
1.2.1 Object	17
1.2.2 Method	20
1.2.3 Sources	23
1.3 Survey of research	24
2. Prophets and prophecy in the Christian tradition	37
2.1 New Testament prophecy	38
2.2 Prophets as heralds of eschatological change	40
2.2.1 Montanus and the New Prophecy	41
2.2.2 Joachim and medieval monastic prophecy	43
2.2.3 Luther and Müntzer: Prophets in dispute	46
2.3 Prophets as interpreters of Scripture	49
2.3.1 Scripture and the cessation of prophecy	49
2.3.2 Prophecy and the sensus spiritualis	51
2.3.3 Prophets as exegetes in the sixteenth century	53
2.3.3.1 Erasmus	53
2.3.3.2 Luther	57
2.3.3.3 Bucer and the Strasburg milieu	60
2.3.4 Prophecy and liturgical chant	63
2.4 Prophets as church officials	66
2.4.1 The prophet as bishop	67
2.4.2 The prophet as teacher	71
2.5 Prophethood of believers in general	74
2.6 Conclusion	80

3. Prophets in the Zurich context	83
3.1 Prophecy in the early Zurich reformation	84
3.1.1 Zwingli's initial position	84
3.1.2 Radical applications	86
3.1.2.1 The rise of Anabaptism	86
3.1.2.2 Zwingli and Hubmaier on language study	88
3.1.2.3 The Schleithem articles (1527)	90
3.1.3 Summary	95
3.2 Zwingli's restatement of the prophetic office	96
3.2.1 Von dem Predigtamt (1525)	96
3.2.2 The prophet as guardian	99
3.2.3 The prophet as interpreter of Scripture	102
3.2.4 Later developments	106
3.2.4.1 Prophetic revelation and divine inspiration	106
3.2.4.2 Prophets and kings	108
3.2.5 Summary	111
3.3 The Zurich "Prophezei" up to 1531	111
3.3.1 Historical development	112
3.3.2 Relation to Zwingli's concept of prophecy	118
3.3.2.1 Terminological considerations	118
3.3.2.2 Between education and liturgy	119
3.3.3 Summary	124
3.4 Conclusion	125
4. De propheta libri duo (1525)	129
4.1 Introduction	129
4.1.1 On De propheta libri duo	129
4.1.2 Defining the prophet	131
4.2 Prophetic authority in dispute	135
4.2.1 The "false prophets" of Catholicism	135
4.2.2 The "self-commissioned messengers" of Anabaptism	142
4.3 Prophets as exegetes	147
4.3.1 Prophecy and the sacred languages	147
4.3.2 Prophecy and rhetorical training	152
4.3.3 Summary	154
4.4 Prophets as bishops	155
4.4.1 Scholar or preaching minister?	156
4.4.2 Consolation and admonition	158
4.4.3 Summary	163
4.5 Weighing the prophet's words	164
4.5.1 The rule of the Spirit	164

4.5.2	Published prophecies	167
4.5.3	Summary	169
4.6	Conclusion	170
5.	De prophetae officio (1532)	175
5.1	Introduction	175
5.1.1	On De prophetae officio	175
5.1.2	Defining the prophet	177
5.2	Prophetic authority and confessional controversy	179
5.2.1	The rule of faith and love	179
5.2.2	Between Zwingli and Luther	181
5.3	Prophets as exegetes	187
5.3.1	Prophets and the covenant	187
5.3.2	Love exceeds linguistic training	191
5.3.3	Summary	196
5.4	Prophets as bishops	196
5.4.1	Criticism and moderation	197
5.4.2	Prophets and church discipline	201
5.4.3	Prophets and the magistrate	207
5.4.3.1	Earliest ideas	208
5.4.3.2	Discussions 1531 – 1532	210
5.4.3.3	Refined understanding	216
5.4.4	Summary	219
5.5	Conclusion	220
6.	De episcoporum institutione et functione (1538)	223
6.1	Introduction	223
6.1.1	On De episcoporum institutione et functione	223
6.1.2	Defining the prophet	224
6.2	From prophetic to ministerial authority	227
6.2.1	Historical context	227
6.2.2	Developments in the 1530s	230
6.2.3	Central theme in 1538	235
6.2.4	Summary	239
6.3	Prophets in biblical-historical perspective	240
6.3.1	Early works	241
6.3.2	Dominant perspective in 1538	247
6.3.3	Summary	252
6.4	Prophetic imagery and church office	253
6.4.1	Re-sacralization of the ministry?	254
6.4.2	Prophets in relation to other New Testament functions	257

6.4.2.1 Commentaries 1520s	257
6.4.2.2 Commentaries 1530s	261
6.4.2.3 Developments in 1538	263
6.4.3 Prophecy for the educated	266
6.4.4 Summary	271
6.5 Conclusion	273
7. Bullinger and the “Prophezei”	277
7.1 Personal involvement	278
7.2 Schools in historical perspective	279
7.3 Prophecy in the liturgy of the Zurich church	286
7.4 Prophecy and the daily office	293
7.5 Conclusion	297
8. Conclusion	301
Abbreviations	309
Bibliography	311
Sources	311
Works by Bullinger	311
Works co-authored by Bullinger	314
Secondary literature	315